92nd THOUSAND ON PRESS

The Leopard's Spots

IT'S difficult to keep up with the Leopard now that he is really getting started. Week before last we announced the 80th thousand in press; but he took another bound before we could get this big printing ready. While this advertisement was being set orders were received for over 5000.

It's a live novel on a vital subject. Dr. Nordau writes the author, Thomas Dixon, Jr.: "You have deliberately undone the work of Harriet Beecher Stowe."

Better order now for the increasing demand.

A Key to Books in Print

In the 1902 PUBLISHERS' TRADE LIST ANNUAL

the books of the 246 publishers who contributed the lists bound up in alphabetical order in the Catalogues volume, are indexed, by author, title and subject catchword, furnishing, by means of 140,000 entries, ready reference to the books of the leading publishers in print on July 1, 1902, and to forthcoming books of which they could furnish information in August. The Index volume and the Catalogues volume of

will be found the most useful, as well as the least expensive, single book trade reference work yet issued, especially for the booksellers and small libraries who cannot afford to buy many trade tools. Price, $2 for the Catalogues volume and $5 for the Index volume, separate, or $7 together, absolutely net.

The Catalogues volume is a huge octavo, probably the largest volume now issued, reaching, with 1902, 5700 pages, being 8¼ inches in thickness and weighing 20 pounds. Directions for enclosure delivery in New York should accompany the order, unless shipment is to be by express at the charge of the subscriber.

The Index volume, an octavo of 1114 pages, will be sent on approval to any bookseller or library enclosing 10 cents for partial postage. Of the Catalogues volume less than 300 remain unsubscribed, and the edition of the Index volume is also limited. Address,

NOTES IN SEASON.

FUNK & WAGNALLS CO. announce a new edition of Dr. Mielziner's "Introduction to the Talmud," first published eight years ago.

HENRY HOLT & Co. will issue at once a fourth volume of "Racine" in the original French. It will contain his "Andromaque," "Britannicus," and "Athalie," with his prefaces to these plays, and introductory remarks and notes by Professor F. M. Warren of Yale.

D. APPLETON & Co. have just brought out in their Twentieth Century Text-Books "A History of the Middle Ages," by Professor Dana Carleton Munro, of the University of Wisconsin, with maps and illustrations. They have also just ready the third edition of "A Text-book of Nursing," for the use of training schools, families, and private students, by Clara Weeks-Shaw, who has revised the book thoroughly and added much new matter. In the Library of Useful Stories they have just issued "The Story of the British Race," by John Munro; "The Story of Geographical Discovery," by Joseph Jacobs, and "The Story of the Cotton Plant," by F. Wilkinson. They will publish next month a new book of sports, called "Racquets, Tennis and Squash," by Eustace Miles, amateur tennis champion of the world.

R. H. RUSSELL has prepared for gift purposes suitable at any season of the year a number of charming books. Among those recently issued are "A Century of Sonnets," compiled by Mrs. S. B. Herrick, with an introduction on the sonnet and indexes to authors, subject, and first lines. The volume is artistically printed, with a rubricated title-page and ornamental initals, and is bound in vellum ornately decorated in gold and tied with silk ribbons. "The Queen's Rosary" is a collection of sixty sonnets by Alice Davis Van Cleve, celebrating an event of each of sixty years of the reign of Queen Victoria, printed with illuminated title-page, ornamental initials, and bound in vellum. "St. George and the Dragon," a unique setting of the famous old English ballad, with eight illustrations by Sir Edward Burne-Jones, is arranged by Fitz-Roy Carrington in the shape of a mediæval scroll, 9½ x 40 inches, which makes a unique gift for a book lover.

THE LOTHROP PUBLISHING COMPANY will publish next month four pieces of fiction. "The Life Within" is a romance in which Christian Science furnishes the motive. The author is anonymous, and both Christian Scientists themselves and the outside reading public will be interested by the way in which the author has conceived the incidents. "Cliveden," by Kenyon West, already favorably known as the author of several books of fiction and criticism, is a historical romance, in which the scene is laid at Chew House in the Revolutionary days. It is a tale of action and incident, and wastes no time in psychologic analysis. Churchill Williams's "The Captain," which follows the same author's successful story of city politics, "J. Devlin, Boss," is a romance dealing with life just south of the Mason-Dixon line, before and during the Civil War, and possesses equal attractions of love and adventure. The central figure of the Captain, who is not mentioned by other than this name, will not easily be forgotten. The fourth volume is George Cary Eggleston's "The Master of Warlock," dealing with the early stages of the Civil War from the Southern point of view, and carrying on Mr. Eggleston's studies of American conditions so delightfully begun in the "Carolina Cavalier" and "Dorothy South."

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

DECEMBER 27, 1902.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications

All matter, whether for the reading-matter columns or advertising pages, should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

Books for the "Weekly Record," as well as all information intended for that department, should reach this office by Tuesday morning of each week.

Publishers are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, as it is of the utmost importance that the entries of books be made as promptly and as perfectly as possible. In many cases booksellers depend on the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY solely for their information. The Record of New Publications of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is the material of the "American Catalogue" and so forms the basis of trade bibliography in the United States.

"I hold every man a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help and an ornament thereunto."—LORD BACON.

VIEWS ON THE "APPRAISAL OF LITERATURE."

BIBLIOGRAPHICALLY the year now closing has been marked to an unusual degree by interest in and discussion of various plans for large general or national bibliographic undertakings. This was the natural result of the endowment gift made last spring by Andrew Carnegie to the American Library Association, for "the preparation and publication of reading lists, indexes, and bibliographical and library aids," and of the expectation that a Bibliographic Department might be developed as a feature of the Carnegie Institution at Washington. The publication last summer of the "Guide to the Literature of American History," issued by the Publishing Board of the American Library Association, gave also a practical example of co-operative bibliographical work that commanded the attention of all interested in the subject. This "Guide" represents that branch of bibliographic effort termed the "appraisal" or "evaluation" of literature, of which Mr. George Iles has long been the sponsor and supporter. Indeed, it was only owing to his large gifts of time and of money that the publication of the "Guide" was made possible. His general scheme of "appraisal" calls for the publication in all fields of literature of exhaustive bibliographies, with annotations "appraising" or "evaluating" the books recorded, the whole forming what Mr. Iles has termed "the consensus of the competent" as to existing literature.

Mr. Iles' theory has been made a basis for still broader schemes for national or co-operative bibliography, to be conducted by some central institution generously endowed. The most recent of these was outlined in the London Times last July by Dr. Emil Reich.* It called for a great elective bibliography, to be carried through as a national or international undertaking under the direction of ninety chosen scholars, among whom the world's literature was to be apportioned, and it was argued that with the proper equipment such a task could be completed within three months. Dr. Reich's scheme resulted in an interesting correspondence in the columns of the Times, among the writers being Dr. Richard Garnett, who pointed out some of the practical obstacles to its execution.

In the current (December) number of the Library Journal the general subject of "appraisal"—both in its simpler and more elaborate aspects—is considered by a number of librarians, many of whom have taken part in the appraisal work already done. The comments and opinions given are varied, but on the whole may be taken to indicate approval of annotated bibliography, in special fields, such as the Iles-Larned "Guide," and hesitation regarding any national or universal appraisal scheme. Dr. Ernest C. Richardson, of Princeton, regards appraisal as "a felt need of students and librarians alike," but points out clearly the practical difficulties of Dr. Reich's plan in its requirement of unlimited funds and unlimited time. He suggests for an appraisal suited to the needs of the day "a list of the best 50,000 books in English, French and German, (not more than half in any general class to be foreign,) with the books best suited to the intelligent general reader starred, but no provision being made for babes and sucklings." Subjects suggested by others for future annotated lists are European and Oriental history, biography, geography, economics and fiction. Mr. J. C. Dana, of the Newark (N. J.) Public Library, points out that the average user of public libraries will rarely use an elaborate appraised list of books, and suggests the preparation of short lists, containing from six to twenty titles each, on such subjects as are included in the general term mechanic arts.

The conclusion to be drawn from a general survey of the subject is that it involves two distinct questions. The preparation of special annotated lists, as brief as those suggested by Mr. Dana, or as elaborate as the Iles-Larned "Guide," is one thing; the universal appraised bibliography is another. The first undertaking is to a degree practical, although the outlay exceeds the returns; still, it is within reasonable limits, and its usefulness is matter of experience. The work already done in this field by the Publishing Board of the American Library Association has supplied a real demand, and the income from the Carnegie endowment should increase its scope and its effectiveness. The second phase of appraisal work bids fair to remain more a subject for theory than for practical test. The immense cost of the equipment and machinery required in proportion to the results to be attained is likely to give pause to the practical-minded philanthropist (and most philanthropists nowadays have practical minds) and philanthropic or government endowment is the necessary foundation of the fabric.

It should not be forgotten, however, that there has been developed during the year an enterprise which is really giving us the materials of national bibliography. This is the work being done by the Library of Congress in the issue to subscribing libraries throughout the country of printed catalogue cards for the books added to its own collection. This undertaking, which is putting into practical operation the plans for co-operative cataloging of library books that have been nebulous for nearly half a century, has been brought to a remarkable degree of efficiency by the Library of Congress, and the experience of a twelvemonth has proved it to be a great convenience and advantage to libraries. From a broader point of view it is even more important. For, as the Library of Congress extends the issue of these cards backward to cover its entire collection, there will be gradually built up the foundations for a working current bibliography, national at least, if not universal. In the report of the Librarian of Congress, just issued, this undertaking is reviewed, and the outline given of its present and possible development should be interesting and suggestive to all concerned with bibliographical affairs.

THE BOOKLOVERS' LIBRARY.

Seymour Eaton, president of the Booklovers' Library, in his address to the shareholders at the recent second annual meeting, reported that there are now 3015 shareholders, of whom 522 are in New York; that the circulation is over 10,000,000 books a year; that the Tabard Inn, in operation scarcely seven months, is earning over $5000 a week, and the Booklovers' about two and a half times as much, enough to pay a 10 per cent. annual dividend on the $1,000,000 capital, of which about half a million of the issue of May last is offered exclusively to members at par. The Temple Library, for Sunday-schools, and the English Booklovers' and London Tabard Inn enterprises are all prospering, and Mr. Eaton said in conclusion: "Our critics, if we have any, are those who are jealous of our success or whose business our library has affected. If the sale of new books in department stores and bookshops has been quartered by our enterprise, the public has been better served; that is all. Blame the public for changing, not the library for making the change possible. It was a very simple matter to look into the future and see that in a few years people would buy only books of permanent value; it did not need a prophet to foresee that the increasingly enormous output of newspaper and periodical literature would create new book readers by the hundred thousand. If ten people desire to read a current book costing a dollar, the cost to these ten people is ten dollars; if the ten people can read the same book at ten cents each, nine dollars have been saved for coal or for books of enduring merit, and a great economic problem has been solved."

DO A FEW PAGES CONTROL THE COPYRIGHT OF A BOOK?

An interesting copyright question has come up in the courts at Toronto, in the suit now pending for trial, in which George N. Morang & Co. are seeking to prevent J. A. Carveth & Co. from further importing or selling an English edition of "The Principles and Practice of Medicine," a work by Dr. William Osler, of Baltimore. There is no copyright in the work either in the United States or in England. Morang & Co. have been importing the American edition and Carveth & Co. the English edition. But having obtained a Canadian copyright of the work, Morang & Co. claim that gives them the exclusive right to its sale in Canada and to control its importation.

But Carveth & Co. reply that the Canadian copyright is only upon two chapters of the work, one of three pages, the other of fifty-three pages; that these have been published and registered at Ottawa solely for the purpose of obtaining copyright to control the Canadian sale of the whole work, which the author himself could not have obtained, not being a "resident of Canada or other British possession." Morang & Co., however, reply in effect that they are not responsible for the state of the Canadian copyright law. They have complied with its requirements, and intend to claim the protection and all the benefits it confers.

In their statement of defence Carveth & Co. say: "The so-called book or literary work which is the subject of the plaintiff's alleged copyright, and of which he claims to be the proprietor, consists of two sections only, containing sixty pages taken from the larger work of Dr. Osler, entitled 'The Principles and Practice of Medicine,' which is a work of eleven sections, and contains 1182 pages. Dr. Osler has for many years resided, and still resides, at Baltimore, where his book was published long prior to the publication in Canada of the plaintiff's so-called literary work or book. The defendants allege, and the fact is, that if any copyright or right to copyright the work ever existed in the United States, it expired prior to the commencement of this suit. In consequence of this the plaintiff's alleged copyright ceased to exist prior to the commencement of this action."

The statement of defence further says: "It is not competent for the plaintiff, by registering part only of the work, to restrain the importation and sale of the complete work. The plaintiff had not, at the commencement of this action, the sole and exclusive right and liberty of publishing and selling the work in Canada, as the right and liberty had expired elsewhere. The so-called book or literary work, which is the subject of the plaintiff's copyright, is not a book or literary work capable of registration under the Copyright Act, and has absolutely no value commercially or otherwise. It was not intended to be a book or literary work in the ordinary acceptance of such terms, but was designed by the plaintiff solely with a view to avoid the provisions of the Copyright Act and so as to enable the plaintiff, by obtaining registration of copyright, to harass and annoy the defendants and its other competitors in business. Such registration was not a bona fide compliance with the provisions of the Copyright Act and is void."

COPYRIGHT MATTER.

AN AUTHOR'S RIGHT TO HIS WORK.

The case of Aflalo and Cook vs. Lawrence & Bullen after nearly four years of litigation was decided in favor of Aflalo and Cook in the Court of Appeals sitting in London, December 18. Aflalo and Cook were engaged upon "The Encyclopedia of Sport," published by Lawrence & Bullen in 1899. Mr. Aflalo was editor and for his services was to receive £500. That sum was also to include several articles which he was to write for the book. Lawrence & Bullen, however, not only used these articles in the encyclopedia, but in an entirely different work, which was subsequently published. To this Mr. Aflalo and Mr. Cook demurred, and two years ago obtained an injunction in the Chancery Division from Justice Joyce. Lawrence & Bullen appealed, and last week the case came up again. After a long argument Justice Vaughan Williams held that, under the circumstances, the copyright had become vested in the publishers, and that the defendants ought to succeed in the appeal. Justice Romer and Justice Stirling, however, took the opposite view, agreeing with the decision of Justice Joyce. The publishers, therefore, failed in their appeal, which was dismissed, with costs. The question of damages is to be decided later.

OBITUARY NOTES.

Theodore Irwin, the well-known bibliophile, died in Oswego, N. Y., December 25, aged seventy-seven. His valuable collection was sold two years ago to J. Pierpont Morgan for about $200,000.

The Very Rev. William Richard Wood Stephens, Dean of Winchester, died December 22. Dr. Stephens was born in Gloucestershire, October 5, 1839, and was the son of Charles Stephens, a banker. He was graduated from Balliol in 1862 in which year he became assistant curate of Staines. He had been Dean of Winchester since 1894. He was the author of several books, among them being "Life and Times of St. John Chrysostom," "Christianity and Islam," "Hildebrand and His Times" and "Life and Letters of E. A. Freeman." He was also joint editor, with the Rev. W. Hunt, of a new "History of the Church of England," in seven volumes.

The Most Rev. Frederick Temple, Archbishop of Canterbury and Primate of All England, died on December 23. Archbishop Temple was born in Santa Maura, Ionian Islands, November 30, 1821. He lost his father, a former governor of Sierra Leone, early in life and was obliged to make his own living by working on a farm. After leaving Oxford he held a position in several educational institutions, being chosen head master of Rugby school in 1858. Dr. Temple held an appointment as a Queen's chaplain, and the publication of an essay by him on "Education of the World," the first of seven "Essays and Reviews" by as many authors, the sentiments of some of which were regarded as unworthy, if not heretical, led to much criticism. In 1869 he was confirmed Bishop of Exeter. In 1883 he was elected Bampton lecturer at Oxford, and his addresses there were published under the title of "The Relation Between Science and Religion." Two years later he was transferred to the See of London, and in 1896 became Archbishop of Canterbury, being the twenty-seventh incumbent of that exalted position.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

The first of the new "Stories Without Word," to be published in Harper's Bazar during 1903, is the work of A. I. Keller, which will appear in the January number. Among other artists engaged on the work are Howard Chandler Christy, W. T. Smedley, and Henry Hutt. The cover design of this issue is by Alice Barbour Stephens.

Henry James's new novel, "The Ambassadors," will begin serial publication in the January number of The North American Review, and will have the honor of being the first work of fiction ever published in that periodical. The Review will be thereby enlarged to 160 pages. In the same number of the Review Mr. Howells writes on Henry James's later work.

The International Studio, for January, will contain the following articles, fully illustrated in a profusion of color processes mezzotint, and black-and-white methods. Gabriel Mourey writes of the work of Manuel Robbe, an etcher in colors, of the French school. A. S. Levetus describes a craft in which keen interest has been revived recently—lace work—and the particular style treated of is indicated by the title "Modern Austrian Pillow and Point Lace," of which profuse examples are shown in the illustrations. Will Jenkins writes interestingly of "A Canadian Artist in the Azores—H. Sandham, R.C.A." To architects the paper contributed by Hugh P. G. Maule on "Some Recent Architectural Designs by Arnold Mitchell" will appeal. The exhibitions are represented by a description of the German section in "The International Exhibition of Modern Decorative Art at Turin," where several German domestic interiors are illustrated. Further afield we are taken by Demetreis Caclamanos who discourses of "A Greek Painter: Nicolas Gysis," whose marvellously realistic subject pictures should be better known in America. Studio talk from all over the art world concludes the number. A very striking volume is the "Corot and Millet" supplement to The International Studio. A glance at the title is sufficient to verify that fact. The account of Jean Baptiste Camille Corot is by Gustave Geoffrey, and that of Millet is by Arsene Alexander. Hitherto no publication has given so excellent an opportunity of studying the work and estimating the standing of these two living artists. Upwards of 70 illustrations, some in color, accompany the text.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

S. R. Crockett has in preparation a series of stories to be published under the general title of "The Adventures in Spain."

Max Beerbohm has completed his long-promised novel, which will be published next spring under the title of "Zuleika Dobson."

The pseudonym used by the late Dr. Parker, of the London City Temple, was "Atey Nyne," not "Any Nyne," as noted inadvertently in our issue of December 13.

Through a misapprehension many reviewers have greeted Frederic Remington's novel "John Ermine" as his first story, and have commented with interest upon the artist's "new departure." As a matter of fact, Mr. Remington has written a number of books, all fairly successful, but his remarkable work with the brush and pencil has overshadowed his clever pen work.

NOTES AND QUERIES.

"House of Hidden Places" is published by John Murray, London.

BUSINESS NOTES.

Bristol, Va.—Bunn & Co.'s bookstore was burned out December 10.

Canandaigua, N. Y.—The sheriff closed the bookstore of Elic Cooley to satisfy several judgments.

Cincinnati, O.—Jones Brothers Publishing Company, 11 Longworth Street, filed a deed of assignment, December 18, with liabilities of about $100,000 and assets of about $50,000. The company was largely engaged in publishing subscription books. It was reported last week that Henry W. Knight, of the Henry W. Knight Company, publishers of subscription books, of 150 Fifth Avenue, New York, is a large stockholder, and that his firm would be affected by the failure of the Jones Brothers Publishing Company. It is said in New York, however, that the Knight Company is solvent and can be carried on profitably. Mr. Knight was for many years connected with the subscription book department of the Methodist Book Concern in New York. In 1882 he became partner in the firm of Bryan Taylor & Co., which, in 1889, was succeeded by the firm of Knight & Brown. In May last the firm of Knight & Brown was dissolved, and on the 12th inst. the firm of Henry W. Knight Company was incorporated with a capital stock of $200,000.

Cooperstown, N. Y.—Charles B. Cooley, printer, has opened a book and stationery store.

El Reno, Okla.—L. C. Van Ness & Co. are closing out their book business.

BIBLIOGRAPHIC NOTES.

James Clegg, Rochdale, Eng., has just brought out the sixth edition of his "International Directory of Booksellers and Bibliophile's Manual, including lists of the public libraries of the world, publishers, book collectors, learned societies and institutions, universities and colleges, also, bibliographies of book and library catalogues," etc., for 1903. This work is steadily becoming more useful as a directory to the American as well as to the British trade and public institutions, the total number of which now recorded by Mr. Clegg is 17,332. (14+384 p. 16°, cl., 6 s.)

The Deutsche Bibliographische Gesellschaft, organized in Berlin last April, has in preparation a bibliography of the German periodical literature of the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries ("Gesammt-Bibliographie der periodischen Erscheinungen des 18. u. 19. Jahrhunderts.") The first volume, with a sketch of the history of the "Romantik," and a catalogue and contents of periodicals for the first three decades of the last century, will be issued during the present winter. All the periodicals upon which the brothers Schlegel and Tieck, Arnim, Kleist Fouqué, Zschokke, Gentz, Löben, and many others are known to have been active, either as editors or as contributors, have been for the first time systematically examined, and a quantity of new and almost inaccessible material has been brought together for the service of the students of literary history. Among the contributors to the first volume are Professors Elstes, of Marburg, O. Walzel, of Berne, Sauer, of Prague, von Weilen, of Vienna, Steig, of Berlin, and many other academical teachers, besides a number of young literary historians. The cost of publication has been entirely provided by voluntary subscription. The secretary of the society is Dr. Houben, 91 Ebersstr., Berlin-Schöneberg, Prussia.

THE MACMILLAN COMPANY have just ready the second edition of W. J. Ghent's work on "Our Benevolent Feudalism," to which the growing agitation against the evils of child labor in the United States has drawn general attention. The matter collected by Mr. Ghent has been used in the recent report on child labor prepared under the auspices of the Church Association for the Advancement of the Interests of Labor by Miss Harriette A. Keyser and others.

DOUBLEDAY, PAGE & Co. have in preparation for publication next spring a forty-volume edition of Shakespeare's works, edited with marginal notes by Mark Harvey Liddell, who has made a life study of the subject. The typography will be sumptuous and unique, the notes forming a frame to the text in a smaller size of the same type. The books are designed and printed by De Vinne and will appear at intervals of from two to six months, the first volume being "Macbeth."

J. B. LIPPINCOTT COMPANY have just published "Adam Rush," by Lynn Roby Meekins, a novel of American life in the second half of the nineteenth century, the action of which centres around a railroad franchise in the seventies, when counties voted themselves into bankruptcy in the expectation of realizing on the increase in the value of real estate, and when the politics were the keenest and most interesting this country has ever known. They have also just ready "The Inevitable," a new novel by Philip Verrill Mighels.

LONGMANS, GREEN & Co. have just ready "The Life and Letters of the Right Honorable Friedrich Max Müller," edited by his wife, which, more than his autobiographical works, shows the innermost character of the real man; also, "Recollections of a Diplomat," by Sir Horace Rumbold, sometime H. M. Ambassador at Vienna, who was connected with the diplomatic service from 1849 to 1873, during which time he occupied several posts in Germany, Switzerland, Athens, Constantinople, and who in 1859 accompanied the English Mission to China. They will shortly publish a "History of India," by Sri Hemlota Devi, (Mrs. Sarkar,) translated by M. S.

Knight, with a number of colored illustrations and maps; also, "The Principles of Land Defense and their Application to the Conditions of To-day," by Captain H. F. Thuillier, of H. M. Royal Engineers, who writes from the point of view that fortifications should not be a self-contained independent branch of military art, but subservient to both strategy and tactics.

THERE is a pretty story in connection with the autobiography of Helen Keller, the wonderful blind girl, shortly to be published in book form by Doubleday, Page & Co., telling about her own life from infancy to the present day. She always has shrunk from the publicity which follows successful literary work, and it was with great difficulty that she was persuaded to take up the task of preparing her autobiography. She had, however, set her heart on owning an island in Halifax harbor for a summer home, and in a spirit of fun the editor of The Journal offered to buy it for her, or to provide the means to buy it. When the work of writing appeared especially irksome Miss Keller was reminded of her desire to become a landholder, and it spurred her on. Just before Christmas she completed the first chapter of her marvellous story, and on Christmas morning she received from her publishers a check for a good round sum. Her delight may be imagined, for this was the first money of any account which she had ever earned. "It is a fairy tale come true," she said.

Two hundred employees of the Long Island News Company were entertained on the evening of December 22, at the home of Frederick P. Morris, head of the news business of the Long Island Railroad, 121 Jamaica Avenue, Flushing, L. I. The occasion was the thirty-third anniversary of the day when Mr. Morris entered the employ of the company as a paper boy. St. Clair McKelway, H. H. Vreeland, Herbert T. Gunnison, W. T. James, Marion J. Verdery, and Col. John W. Vrooman were also present. Mr. McKelway talked of the lessons to be learned from the life of such a man as Abraham Lincoln, and Mr. Vreeland told the story of how he worked his way from the Rocky Hill Cut night gravel train to the presidency of the Metropolitan Street Railway Company of New York City. Telegrams and letters of congratulation were received from President Roosevelt, Jacob A. Riis, President W. H. Baldwin, of the Long Island Railroad, George H. Daniels, of the New York Central, James Mitchell Chapple and Joseph A. Marsh, of the American News Company.

R. H. RUSSELL has just brought out a portfolio of eighteen plates reproducing in photogravure, under the title of "Birds of God," angels and other imaginary figures from the pictures of the masters of the Renaissance. The plates are selected for children by Jeannette B. Radcliffe-Whitehead, with a view to impress the young in kindergartens and schools with an object lesson on the charm of the old masters. Ralph Radcliffe-Whitehead furnishes an introduction and an explanation of each picture. Besides this Mr. Russell has just brought out "The History of Over Sea," done into English by William Morris, with decorations in the style of Morris by Louis Rhead; the story of "Perseus and Andromeda," as retold from Ovid's "Metamorphoses," by Richard Le Gallienne, with six illustrations of Perseus, Medusa, and Minerva; "Iris," Arthur W. Pinero's much-talked-of drama, with a number of pictures of the play; also, "A Dog Day, or, the Angel in the House," an amusing story of a dog's day told by Walter Emanuel and illustrated by twenty-four lithograph prints in color by Cecil Aldin. Mr. Russell has also just ready a new book by John Kendrick Bangs, the popular and unflagging humorist, entitled "Emblemland." It is a capital story for young people, the fun of which is quite deep enough for mature readers. The book is illustrated by C. R. MacAuley.

ECONOMICS OF FORESTRY

By BERNHARD E. FERNOW

Director of the New York State College of Forestry, Late Chief Division of Forestry U. S. Department of Agriculture

12mo, net, $1.50; by mail, $1.65

THE forest and water supplies, declares President Roosevelt, are perhaps the most vital internal problems of the United States. Certainly the preservation of our timber lands, until recently devastated without regard for future needs, is a subject which merits the earnest attention of both the government and the private individual.

Dr. Fernow, long recognized as an authority and expert in scientific forestry, has here gathered together more facts on this great subject than were ever before presented within the covers of a single volume.

"He has the art of putting into a single verse the pathos, the tenderness, the sentiment, that a less gifted writer would dilute in hundreds of words. It is marvelous how many notes he strikes surely and sweetly. 'Later Lyrics' is presented in dainty form, in harmony with its matter."—Cleveland Leader.

AN UNUSUAL OPPORTUNITY TO PURCHASE

the Valuable Good Will and Complete Stock of

AN OLD ESTABLISHED BUSINESS

A rare chance to enter at once upon a business as successor to a firm well known throughout this country and abroad.

The business since the death of Mr. Cushing on November 23, 1902, has been carried on as usual without interruption by authority of the Circuit Court No. 2 of Baltimore City.

The stock of books is one of the largest and most varied in the United States, consisting of the Standard Sets in various bindings, Illustrated Books, Reference Books, Law Books, Medical Books, Religious and Devotional Books, School Books, College and University Text Books, Scientific Books, Nature Books, Books of Games, Sports, etc., Juvenile Books, Agriculture Books, Classical Books, Latin, French, Greek, Spanish, Italian, Hebrew, Portuguese, etc.

Bibles, Testaments, Episcopal Prayer Books and Hymnals.

The Stationery Department is a very important part of the business and the stock large and attractive.

Cushing & Company have for many years had as customers the leading Banks and Mercantile Houses in Baltimore and its vicinity, and do a very large amount of printing, binding, etc., for commercial use.

Having a bindery in the same building, and owned by them, they were enabled to do this work under their own supervision. It is a regular job bindery, equipped for ruling and making every style of printed and blank books, including binding for Public Libraries. There is no printing or engraving department in the building, but with the facilities open to them in the city, an extensive business is done in job printing, engraving in every form, including Wedding Invitations, Crests, Monograms, Street Address Dies, and in everything that is demanded of a first-class establishment in the way of fine work.

Among the regular customers of the business are most of the numerous educational institutions of Baltimore, including the Woman's College, Johns Hopkins University, Johns Hopkins Hospital, Medical and Dental Colleges, Law Schools, very many private schools, also Public Libraries, including the Peabody and the Enoch Pratt Free Library, with its seven branches. The trade of Cushing & Company extends in its various branches throughout our entire State, and largely in Virginia and North Carolina, including a large jobbing trade.

The entire stock, including Bindery and Good Will, we desire to sell as a whole, and we think satisfactory arrangements may be made to occupy the present building, which is a centrally located store of five stories and basement, in which the business has been carried on for over fifty years.

Intending purchasers will be furnished by the administrators, in confidence, with price and full information upon application to JOHN HINKLEY, 215 North Charles Street, Baltimore, and will be allowed full opportunity for inspection of stock upon the administrators being satisfied of their responsibility and serious contemplation of purchasing.

The acceptance of any proposal of purchase will be subject to its approval by the Court.
